Mr. Pélix's selection of piece for the pleasure of bearing them perform as they would do for distinguished artistes from Europe win can command audiences without be disagreeable touting system in vogue ithis sountry. Mr. Pélir's selection of piece was as it ought to have been, a happy one, as his silvery touch was shown off to perfection ment of them. If there was one piece were than another that elicited enthusiastic applease we might piec out an exquisit Nocturne of Chopin's (Opus 15 No. 2), in which an ottrecurring melody framed in flowing cachenas brought out the pianist's remark-ble agility of finger. Wagners "Chour des Pileuses," from his "Vaisseau Pantôme," arranged by Litt, was also much appreciated. Mr. Pélir's wonderfully delicate touch is not a well suited to the heavier Gorman music. Mr. Félix's wonderfully deficate touch is not so well suited to the heavier forman music, which requires greater breadth of tone and a deeper sentiment. To our mind his conception of Mendlesbon's "Frühlings Lied" was quite incorrect and far removed from the traditional once as tanght in German Conservatories, but on the other hand, the Duo by the same com-

KHEDIVIAU OPERA HOUSE.

KHEDIVIAL OPERA HOUSE.

The Khedivial Opies House reassetted itself in La Tosca. The performance was in overy way ascalent, Signors Pandolini obtained and justified the welcome, dee'to an old Caire favorite both by he estinging and by her acting. Signor Girnad waspleasing and artistic, and Signor Clene was consigned to the excellence of his acting; we could with that all opers singes would give so much asteemen to the consistency of the consisten Trisian, or inceed in any piece where the composer has devoted his attention to the music and not only to those who execute it. In a word, we would wish to find (and we have a right to expect) that sense of ensemble which it is the duty, as it should be the pleasure, of the Khedivial Opera House to present its audience.

Signora Isabella Svicher, the celebrated operatic artists, who created such a frarer at the Verdi Theatre in Caire, and whose adversit had been anxiously swaited by a large action of the man form of the man for the contract of the man form of the man for the man form of the man imaginized artistes as Signe. Gemma Bellincioni and Signe Labella Siviche, and from the rapturous applanae so lavishly bestowed by enthusiastic and delighted audiences on sech of these accomplished ladies, it is certain that the season will be a successful one. SignaSivicher's Lonis, on Saturday, was an interpretation such as is seldom seen. Her singing was certainly as revelation to many present, and her sotting with a state of the significant too. The tenor, Signor Tomissani bring unwell, the class of the Eggard was asstanted by Signor Pagani, who socord a distinct success. In fact, we think we have never heard Signor Pagani to better advantage. Signor Baddelli, in the simall part of Raimondo, was excellent. The other minor parts were in good hands and the vorbestra and chorus were fully up to their usual standard.

ANDREA CHENTED

ANDREA CHENIER.

An admirable performance of Giordano's Andrea Cherie was given on Sanday night. Signor Pagani was in splendid voice and gave an excellent interpretation of the exceedingly trying title role. He was the success of the evening. Signor D. Bassich, who mads her debut on this occasion, gave a fairly good rendering of the part of Maddadeaus if Origny, but her voice is not robust enough to stand her in good stead in an opera like Arbeit, who possesses a voice of delightful freshness, was eminiently successful. Sig. Montanari also sourced a distinct success.
