In his preface Sir W. Willooks modestly says that his object is to bring up to date the brilliant essay on the Nile of the Italian engineer Lombardini published in 1855. We think the author has done much more than that, for in a book of only 220 pages he bayes before us, not only the resulting the case of the property of the prope book lears avidence to the fact that it is written by one who is a complete master of his subject. Our raders are well aware of this, as the author has frequently contributed to our columns; sometimes we have shared his opinions, and sometimes we have not done so, but we always recognise that they have been every clearly and foreibly stated. The plates inserted in the text are of great assistance. We doubt if any published section of the Nile ever gave so much information in so small a compase as does Plate J. extending from the sea to Lake Victoria, a distance of 6,000 kilometres.

In thapter I., devoted to the main viver, we find many interesting remarks. Referring to the Bine Nile, the author says: "The Bine Nile is the true parent of the land of Egypt. The dynamic of the land of Egypt. The dynamics of the land plentiful rams of Southers 65 per cent of the water which pass the state of the land plentiful rams of Southers of the land plentiful rams of Southers for the land of Egypt. At a meeting of the Society of Arts yesterday week; kii R. Hashury Brown preciding, a paper was read by Sir William H. Proce on "The Navigation of the Nike." As the Chairman mentioned at the conclusion of the lecture, most of those present expected that Sir Williams would have dealt with the matter from the point of view of the electrical engineer, but he declared his man object to be to consider the question of the navigation of the Nike from Assonant to the sea, the regulation of the currents, depth of water, channels, and banks, which was the season of the season of the season of the control of the three control of the season of the control of the season of t Gasetie' is a timely warning to those who are responsible for pease and order in this country. The proposed establishment of a "Nik Mission Preas" and the weekly published or is disciplinated in "direct and cocident," naturally arones ("virent and Cocident," naturally arones the attention of those interested in the sul-gions situation here, especially when we comember that there are indications of a more transport of the peace of the peace of the peace of the constitution of the peace of the peace of the peace of the constitution of the peace o group situation bere, especially whom we remember that there are indication of a mow active spirit among the followers of the Prophet.

The "Likoma Quarterly" and lately "Everywhere we can see Mohamedanism at "work, and its teachers are keen that we "should not get a look in among the popple. Again, the "Zanibar Gastete "recently about the seed of the skill and a syscolar their appearance. The article offered by the modern Western missionary for the acceptance of the Moslem, the Hindu, and the Buddhist, is thoroughly Western in evolution and presentation; in fact, as modern research has abundantly shown, we as modern research has abundantly shown, we Westerus are all at sea in our interpretation of the Gospel, till we have made allowance for its rhetorical method and the Orientalism of its form.

If it should be granted that Christianity If it should be granted that Unratuanty should be preached to the Moslem, it is distinctly an arguable point how far the cool iterations of the West can hope to effectively and acceptably present to Eastern minds the contents of an Eastern book.—I am, etc.

EGYPTIAN INVESTMENT AND AGENCY.

To the Editor of the Egyptian Gazette

To the Eutron of the Eutralia Garria.

Sir:—I beg to address you these few lines in connection with the paragraph in your issue of yesterday on the Egyptian Investment and Agency which was a reply to some articles appearing in some Cairo papers. All did the same these articles I do not not some facts for which this Company is to be blamed.

The direction ought to have allotted to every applicant or much per cent of the shares appeared to the same papers. All the shares applied for, in proportion to the total application, or in proportion to the total application, or in proportion to the total application of the same papers that for the immense demand the Co. thinks of giving shares to all those who applied for 500 shares and upward only in proportion to the demands, and defer all other applications below these figures. Why did they not do so!

I was one who applied for 100 shares and have remitted the required amount to be paid on application and was prepared to meet any call. When remitting same a correspondence was held which seared me that the Co. was prepared to direct a notice that the Co. was prepared to direct a notice of the shares between the subscription of the shares between the subscription of the subscription. If they intended to others who applied for, which number of shares whole he was permised before the subscription.

If they intended to differentiate among the applicants, and to allot to their friends and leave the others, why make the subscription publicly and why they did not mention in their propoeties?

I, and am sare all the others who had the same chance like me, protest against such doings of the company! I and the greater part of applied and manufact of these whose thems of applied to the same chance like me, protest against such doings of the company! I and the greater part of applied and represent parts of applied the demands and the others who had the same chance like me, protest against such doings of the company! I and the greater part of applied and the protest part of applied a

I, and am sure all the others who had the same chance like me, protest against such doings of the company. I and the greatest part of applicants applied for these shares through the confidence we had in the directors in Egypt, and specially in the respected person of its massaging director, Mr. Richard Abdy, and never thought that we would be treated in that way.

I regret for not taking any recommendation when applied for these shares had I known that result.—I am, etc.
